Warning Signs That Care is Needed

Sometimes people won't admit they need help to stay at home, and others may be unaware that it is time for some extra help to maintain a healthy and safe home environment. Knowing and watching for signs that could indicate extra assistance is needed may fall on family, friends or advisors. Take note of the following:

	•	Difficulty cooking. The person could be having difficulty finding the energy to cook, grasping the tools necessary to cook, reading labels or directions on food products, or getting groceries into the home.  Loss of taste or smell. Some loss of taste and smell is natural with aging, especially after age 60. In other cases, illness or medication contributes to loss of taste or smell. The person might not be interested in eating if food doesn't taste or smell as good as it used to.  Underlying conditions. Sometimes weight loss is a sign of a more serious underlying condition, such as malnutrition, dementia, depression, or cancer.

Yes No	Is the elderly person having difficulty getting around?
	Yes No	Is he/she reluctant or unable to walk usual distances?
	Yes No	Is knee or hip arthritis making it difficult to get around the house?
	Yes No	Is he/she shuffling, or would he/she benefit from a cane or walker?

Muscle weakness, joint problems and other age-related changes can make it difficult to move around. If he is unsteady on his feet, he may be at risk of falling—a major cause of disability among older adults.

Behavior

Yes No	Has the person exhibited forgetfulness or inappropriate behavior?
	Yes No	Is he/she unusually loud or quiet, paranoid, agitated, making phone calls at all hours?
	Yes No	Has his/her forgetfulness resulted in unopened mail, piling newspapers, unfilled prescriptions, or missed appointments?
	Yes No	Has he/she mishandled finances such as not paying bills, losing money, paying bills twice or more, or hiding money?
	Yes No	Has he/she made unusual purchases such as buying more than one magazine subscription of the same magazine, entering an unusual amount of contests, purchasing an increased amount of items from television advertisements?
Yes No	Are multiple medications from multiple doctors being taken?

Sometimes multiple doctors may be treating a person for multiple health conditions. Usually doctors are not in communication about other doctors' prescriptions. Decline in functioning may be due to medication reactions/interactions. Have multiple prescriptions evaluated by a medical doctor skilled in polypharmacy (the knowledge of how various medications interact).

If any of these signs are noted and raise concerns, bring them to the attention of the person's physician and consider additional care in the home. Independence-4-Seniors provides traditional and non-traditional in-home care offerings such as meal preparation, personal care, transportation and Alzheimer's care, whether the needs are daily, weekly, temporary or long-term.
